Photoshop 2021 (Version 22.3)

Although Photoshop will work in almost any Windows operating system, it's not as user-friendly as the Windows programs (GIMP and Paint Shop Pro) listed in this chapter. If you want to design Web pages, you may also be interested in my book Web Design for

Photographers, published by Wiley Publishing, Inc.: www.dummies.com/web/photography. An easy way to edit images with Photoshop is to simply duplicate the image on a new layer and then move, resize, crop, or manipulate any of those features on the new layer. That way, if you need to change your mind, you need only drag your cursor to the original layer and the changes will go to the new layer. You can easily remove the original image layer as well (by using the Layer menu at the top of the screen) and begin editing the duplicate. Make sure that you create duplicate layers from the original image, so that you can continue to work on any edits you create. Figure 2-1 shows a form from my website that was designed and created on a new Photoshop page. The form uses alpha transparency and a solid fill color to create several buttons and a text field. Figure 2-1: Create a new layer and create the form on that new layer. Photoshop provides many helpful tutorials on the Internet. If you're an artist who can draw, paint, craft, or create textured images, you're a visual communicator. You use your artistic eye to communicate emotion, clarify a message, or simply create interesting imagery. The shape and form of your artwork is important. It's not enough for your artwork to look good; it has to communicate a message clearly. Putting your artwork on paper

Katie Hopkins has been given a six-week prison sentence for shouting anti-Islamic abuse at a mosque. The presenter of Britain's most controversial TV show was spared a court order banning her from entering the Muslim community after she burst into the Ahmadi Mosque near Edgbaston, Birmingham, where she waved a placard and shouted a barrage of Islamophobic abuse. The 35-year-old, who lost viewers when she was banned from entering Britain's Channel 4 studio in July 2017, added: "Britain First" and "Islam=Terror" before a large crowd of onlookers. Mrs Justice Vos said it was "not acceptable for you to have said the things you said in that mosque." She added: "I am of the view that a prison sentence would benefit the wider community. "I am satisfied that a period of imprisonment would help you reflect on what you did and how such things would be viewed by others." Mrs Justice Vos imposed a six-week prison sentence suspended for two years, and gave Ms Hopkins 20 hours of community service, less 10 of them while in custody. She told Ms Hopkins she would have to make "very serious amends in that mosque and elsewhere to re-establish contact with the Muslim community and heal any hurt or offence you caused". In a statement released by her lawyer, the presenter, who is divorced, and mother of two, said: "I would like to apologise to the people of Edgbaston for the hurt and offence I caused them. "As I say again, I am ashamed of my actions and the hurt I caused. I am ashamed that a man I work with now has to live with the fact that he had to stand and protect me when I was abusing and shouting 'F**k off'. "I would like to say that I think we have learnt a lesson from this and I will do all I can to ensure this does not happen again. "I apologise deeply for the pain I have caused to my family, friends and children and to the great mosques in Edgbaston. I am particularly sorry for my family. "I want to state for the record that I do not know why I did what I did. I know that people feel that I was racist and they are right in that. But I was not racist. I was anti-Islam and I still am." Ms Hopkins, who was initially filmed using a meg
